Unlock the Future: your key to Chamber Made Opera

What's hanging on your key ring? Your silver back door key? A key to your lover's front door? Or a clunky work key? Imagine if hanging on that key ring was a glowing orange key that opened the door to a secret and exclusive club. A key that would let you slip through the doors of some of the most interesting living spaces in Melbourne and have an extraordinary artistic experience — a Chamber Made Opera site-specific production, inhabiting that living room with movement and music.

Chamber Made Opera, whose genius lies in their surprising and always innovative collaborative art projects, is unveiling their latest concept and it is an intriguing one. For a price, you can become a Chamber Made Opera key holder and hold your own limited-edition numbered orange key. Each key will give you access and various privileges to a range of Chamber Made Opera Productions and events both in Australia and worldwide. Currently Chamber Made Opera is working towards Living Room Operas to be performed in living rooms in Melbourne, Sydney, Berlin, and New York.

The beauty and the thrill of The Living Room Operas is not only do you experience a new and astonishing opera specifically created for that space, you also get the opportunity to sticky beak around other people's living rooms. As Artistic Director David Young says, you can "delve into the artists' minds in places you never imagined opera could be found." The singers and musicians are close enough to touch, their music vibrating dinner plates and souls alike.

There are four types of keys to choose from — an orange key, a double key, a gold key and, for the truly adventurous, the Master Key. The Master Key holder (of which there will only be one) will have the extraordinary opportunity to commission and host an opera in their own living room. After the initial season, the Living Room Opera will travel across Australia and the world to other living rooms, theatres and festivals, carrying the name of the master keyholder with it. Unlock the future of art.
